About the EPSO Conferences in general

About the EPSO Conferences in general - Please note:

- The EPSO sessions will be introduced from the various perspectives around the world by Regulatory Leaders from our EPSO Network and other speakers invited by EPSO. The sessions aim to be interactive and will be followed by one or more break-out sessions; the sessions alternate with group discussions.
- The EPSO conference and conference dinner are free of charge for EPSO delegates, (invited) partners from the EPSO-APAC network, speakers and other (invited) guests.
- Participation in-person in the conference is in principle limited to a maximum of 3 participants per EPSO-partner organisation/country.
- Travel and hotel must be organised by yourself; all costs are at your own expense.
- Participation online is limited to EPSO partners and - by EPSO- invited guests; please use the link to our Microsoft Teams meeting that will be sent to you. All online participants -except speakers – are requested to have their cameras on and microphones muted.
- If you want to join us online in the conference, please let us know in advance at info@epsonet.eu who you are (name/ country/ organisation) and which sessions you want to follow.
- Participation in the conference means that you accept the exclusion of all liability from EPSO and from our hosts for loss or theft of your assets and for possible liability resulting from damage caused by shortcomings of the organization; however, as usual with our EPSO conferences, the organisation does everything it can to ensure that the conference runs smoothly and safely.

37th EPSO Conference (online and in person)

Conference Programme Day 1

11 December 2024 (Wednesday)

Day 1

- Photo session
- Opening & Welcome by EPSO
- Keynote & Opening speech by our host the Dutch Healthcare Authority NZA

Session 1.1 Leadership in a regulatory context- key themes

In this session we will focus on:

- 3 key themes of leadership in a regulatory context.
 - Balancing Innovation and Compliance
 - Supporting Adaptive Regulatory Frameworks
 - Promoting Collaborative Solutions
- Opportunities for leadership using a system-based approach.
- Introducing Just Culture in a complex organisation
- Q&A & Panel discussion with interventions from the audience including delegates from the Ministry of Defence (The Netherlands).

Session 1.2 Leadership in a regulatory context– new leadership models

In this session we focus on new leadership models for the future of health and social care. We look ahead to new developments in the Netherlands, such as new Quality Frameworks and models for collaboration between organisations. These new models require different dynamics of leadership and supervision and must adapt to the needs of society.

Session 1.3 Leadership in a regulatory context – leadership models in England, quality and leadership in mental health services in Ireland, leadership in a regulatory transformation in Singapore and Leadership in an era of online digital healthcare in the UK

In this session we will turn our focus from theory to practice and listen to the experiences from CQC England, the Mental health Commission Ireland, the Ministry of Health Singapore and the bumpy road of leadership in digital health in the UK.

Some overall questions for these sessions are: What are the standards for good leadership/ Does this include a focus on just culture? How to regulate differences in outcome and differences in approach. What does good leadership look like? Is 'good' good enough or should it be excellent? How to reach excellency here? Challenges in safety culture because of poor or ineffective leadership; Safety through learning?

Session 1.4 Discussion - Leadership in a regulatory context

- Split up in groups - Discussion in 5 groups and with speakers of session 1, EPSO partners, Delegates, and Guests.

Transport from Utrecht to Zeist – organised by EPSO

Session 1.5

- Drinks & pre-dinner session at FIGI in co-operation with Genio de Groot – a well-known Dutch actor, playwright and director, television, and theatre maker. Conversation about Just Culture and the ideas of “Benedictus de Spinoza” (1632 -1677) one of our most famous and influential Dutch philosophers on freedom, tolerance and democracy.

- Conference Dinner at Slot Zeist Blauwe Zaal -Conference dinner is on invitation by EPSO, supported by Zilveren Kruis Achmea.

Conference Session 1.1 Leadership in a regulatory context
Session 1.1 10:15–12:30
10.15 – 10.45	Keynote speech Mark O’Brien on leadership Based on three key themes: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Balancing Innovation and Compliance: For regulators, understanding the delicate balance between encouraging innovation and ensuring compliance is crucial. Recognising the challenges healthcare leaders face in resource-constrained environments can help regulators tailor policies that support innovative practices while maintaining high standards of safety and legality. • Supporting Adaptive Regulatory Frameworks: Regulators can enhance effectiveness by fostering adaptive frameworks that anticipate and respond to evolving healthcare practices. By collaborating closely with operational leaders, regulators can proactively shape regulations that promote sustainable solutions and address emerging challenges in healthcare delivery. • Promoting Collaborative Solutions: Emphasising collaboration between regulators and healthcare leaders can lead to more nuanced and effective regulatory outcomes. By acknowledging the complexities of healthcare dynamics, regulators can engage in informed dialogues that prioritise patient safety, operational efficiency, and the advancement of healthcare practices, fostering a regulatory environment conducive to positive outcomes for all stakeholders. 	Prof. Mark O’Brien ^(in-person) Associate Fellow and Programme Director, Oxford Healthcare Leadership Programme, Saïd Business School, University of Oxford, UK
10.45 – 11.00	Comfort break

11.00– 11.20	Opportunities for leadership using a system-based regulation approach to focus on desired quality and safety outcomes instead of strict compliance. Martin’s contribution will resonate with Mark O’Brien’s keynote speech. He will focus on research in healthcare, showing that a better performance of health care providers can be facilitated if the regulator takes the potential gaps between ‘work as imagined’ and ‘work as done’ as a focal point and mirror its findings back in a dialogue with the healthcare provider. More specifically, it helps if the regulator stays away from a too formal and compliance-based attitude and – instead – puts the outcome (safety and quality) first. Building on the complexity theory, Martin will make the point that in a complex world rules are never a perfect means to achieve desired outcomes. (specific conditions should be considered by the regulator as well as by the regulatee) Key themes will be: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> •Why compliance should be about outcome, not about the letter of the law. •How can regulators enclose the potential for self-regulation within health care providers without being captured? •What regulatory interventions are supportive for second order learning and in-depth improvement? 	Martin de Bree (In-person) Rotterdam School of Management, Erasmus University Rotterdam, The Netherlands.
11.20 –11.50	Introducing Just Culture in a complex organization like the Ministry of Defence In this session we will– from the perspective of Safety and Effectiveness within the Royal Netherlands Air Force - look at the practical and theoretical aspects of introducing ‘Just Culture’ in a complex organisation like the Ministry of Defence; This session will make the learnings from the complexities of fostering a restorative just culture in practice within the Royal Netherlands Air Force available for other sectors. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Questions are: - Could the learnings from the Military sector provide new and important learnings for other sectors such as health and social care regulation? - Could this provide new and important learnings for managing and regulating quality and safety in the complexity of health and social care regulation? - Could healthcare leaders and regulators working with compliance and safety models in complex organisations such as health and social care services learn from these experiences? 	Prof. Leonie Boskeljon Horst (In-person). – Kolonel Ministry of Defence, aviation psychologist and ass. Professor in Human Factors, Just Culture and Psychological Safety, Program Leader Academic Collaborative Centre Just Culture and Social Safety, The Netherlands.
11.50- 12.30	Q&A /Panel Discussion with interventions from the audience including the Ministry of Defence delegates	Moderated by the speakers of session 1.1 (Mark O’Brien, Martin de Bree, and Leonie Boskeljon-Horst)

16.30 – 16.50	3.6 Equity: a double perspective on how good regulation and good regulatory delivery are essential to achieve equity <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Over-regulation (burdensome entry requirement for health providers, barriers to employment of foreign specialists, additional requirements to obtain certain prescriptions or certain types of care etc.) are directly harmful to the poorest, the least socially connected, those who know least well how to navigate the system, who live in the least favoured areas, etc. Services are more scarce (harder to simply get an appointment), more expensive, or too far away (hence also too expensive). Least-connected or less-informed people do not know what opportunities might exist, what care they may need, how to access it etc. People with mental health conditions, or neurodivergent people, can again suffer particularly from this. - Ineffective supervision/delivery (in particular if not relying on good data and risk analysis) leaves incompetent, unsafe, unethical etc. providers operate without identifying and stopping them. These, particularly, prey on the most vulnerable. 	Florentin Blanc EPLO  Institute for Regulatory Innovation, Delivery and Effectiveness
